World Cultural Heritage (component asset) Site Miho-no-Matsubara (Pine Grove)

Miho-no-Matsubara as one of 3 major pine groves with over 300,000 point trees along about 7 km of the coast line. The view of Mt. Fuji from the shore is truly a masterpiece. The amazing view is such that it was selected as one of three best famous scenic views in Japan in 1916. On March 8th, 1922, the spot was named as the first scenic beauty spot in Japan under the Historical Spot, Scenic Beauty and Natural Monument Preservation Law (Cultural Property Protection Law) and was registered as a component asset of the Fujisan World Cultural Heritage Site.

Since the removal of dead pine needles is essential to maintain a soil environment suitable for maintaining a healthy pine grove, energy cycling has been constructed in the region to both reduce environmental impact and to preserve the pine grove.

A facility promoting Miho-no-Matsubara Culture & Creativity Center Miho Shirube

A power stone found by the seashore Hachimaki Stone

The Miho Peninsula, which is famous for the Miho-no-Matsubara, is a landform made up of sediments and other materials that traveled down the Abe River from one of Japan's three major landslides, the Oyakuzure, upstream of the Abe River. These stones with white lines that you can see on the coast of Miho are called "Hachimaki (bandana) stones" and are famous as power stones that make wishes come true.
